"Comically rich!
A night of spontaneous combustion!
These people are really good."
— Ann Arbor Observer

Mark Loeb

5'6," brown hair and eyes, 140 lbs. Plays well with others. Good with kids. Divorced, sensitive and creative. Would love to keep him but he messes in the apartment.

Jenni Pickett

Jenni is currently pursuing a PhD in chemistry. Due to her friends' support, she believes she is funny. Thanks to Brian, she believes in true love. And because of TILT, she believes she can actually fly.

Steve Petersen

Steve is the "artistic" "director" of Tilt. He should be writing his dissertation instead.

TILT would like to thank: Suzi Peterson, Ann Arbor Civic Theater, Keith Johnstone, Viola Spolin, Whitley Hill-Setrakian, Kate Conner-Ruben, the Ann Arbor Observer, and everyone helping us out!

Jenifer Clark

Jenifer is a doctoral student in Developmental Psychology. When life seems too crazy, she looks to improv, her husband Stephen, and their two cats to keep her sane. (This explains a lot, actually)

Steve "BattleBot" Kime fue rescatado por TILT de una mina del linóleo en Venezuela. Él ha ampliado su repertorio de la "robot" para incluir el "zombie." Él originó el papel del "hurón maricon." Él también piensa que los monos son divertidos.

Robert Gressis

Somewhere on his body, Rob has a tattoo of a dog on a ferris wheel. Also, he has an extra bone.
